Patents and Clean Energy Technologies in Africa (UNEP/EPO)

<http://www.epo.org/news-issues/issues/clean-energy/patents-africa.html>

Less than 1 per cent of all patent applications relating to clean energy technology (CET) have been filed in Africa, according to a new United Nations study, which also highlights the opportunity for the continent to leapfrog existing fossil-fuel energy sources and, in the process, cut greenhouse gas emissions and improve public health. Africa has a huge untapped potential for generating clean energy, including enough hydroelectric power from its seven major river systems to serve the entire continent's needs, as well as enormous potential for other energy sources such as solar, wind and geothermal, according to the study by the UN Environment Programme (UNEP) and the European Patent Office (EPO).

The Prevention of Occupational Diseases (ILO)

English and French: http://www.ilo.org/safework/info/WCMS_208226/lang--en/index.htm

Occupational diseases cause huge suffering and loss in the world of work. While much progress has been made in addressing the challenges of occupational diseases, there is an urgent need to strengthen the capacity for their prevention in national OSH systems. With the collaborative effort of governments and employers' and workers' organizations, the fight against this hidden epidemic will have to feature prominently in new global and national agendas for safety and health. This report for the World Day for Safety and Health at Work outlines the current situation concerning occupational diseases and presents proposals for addressing this serious Decent Work deficit.

Update – UNAIDS Special Report: How Africa turned Aids around

http://www.unaids.org/en/media/unaids/contentassets/documents/document/2013/05/20130521_Update_Africa.pdf

The Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS (UNAIDS) has released this new report on the AIDS response in Africa on 21 May 2013, as the African Union (AU) begins its 21st summit in Addis Ababa. It documents the remarkable recent progress against HIV on the continent. The number of people in Africa receiving antiretroviral treatment increased from less than 1 million in 2005 to 7.1 million in 2012, with nearly 1 million added in the last year alone.

World Report on Child Labour: Economic vulnerability, social protection and the fight against child labour (ILO)

French: http://www.ilo.org/ipec/Informationresources/WCMS_178446/lang--fr/index.htm

This new ILO says that social protection policies can play a key role in the fight against child labour, which currently affects some 215 million children worldwide. The study reviews relevant research on how different types of social protection measures can help combat child labour. These include cash transfer schemes, social health protection and income security in old age.

Human Rights

Report of the United Nations Joint Human Rights Office on Human Rights Violations perpetrated by Soldiers of the Congolese Armed Forces and Combatants of the M23 in Goma and Sake, North Kivu Province, and in and around Minova, South Kivu Province, from 15 November to 2 December 2012

English: http://www.ohchr.org/Documents/Countries/ZR/UNJHROMay2013_en.pdf

French: http://www.ohchr.org/Documents/Countries/ZR/UNJHROMay2013_fr.pdf

Serious violations of human rights and international humanitarian law were committed in November 2012 during fighting between government forces and rebels of the Movement du 23 mars (M23) over the town of Goma in North Kivu province in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and during the subsequent retreat of the Congolese Armed Forces (FARDC) to South Kivu province, a UN report has found. The report by the United Nations Joint Human Rights Office (UNJHRO) details victim and witness accounts of mass rape, killings and arbitrary executions, and violations resulting from widespread looting. It noted that particularly systematic and violent abuse was committed by some FARDC elements as they retreated from the towns of Goma and Sake in North Kivu province and regrouped in and around the town of Minova in South Kivu.

Who Will Be Accountable? Human Rights and the Post-2015 Development Agenda (OHCHR)

<http://www.ohchr.org/Documents/Publications/WhoWillBeAccountable.pdf>

Any new global review mechanism for post-2015 development commitments should explicitly refer to international human rights treaty standards, and should ensure rigorous independent review, effective civil society participation and high-level political accountability. The data generated by the review mechanisms for post-2015 global development goals should feed systematically into international human rights review and reporting processes.
